REPUBLICANS BAN LAFOLLETTE FROM CONFERENCE JOBS

Radical Forces in Party to Be Excluded from Ranks of Committees.

CONFERENCE DECIDES

Four in LaFollette Ranks
Banned from Important
Roles in Senate.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Charles Curtis, senior senator from Kansas was elected today as successor to the late Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts as the Republican leader in the senate.

Senator James E. Watson of Indiana was elected as the party "whip" which post has been held by Senator Curtis since Republicans gained control of congress in 1918.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, and three of his principal supporters in the senate practically were read out of the Republican party today at a conference of the senate Republicans.

The conference adopted a resolution by Senator Reed of Pennsylvania under which Mr. LaFollette, Senators Ladd and Frazier of North Dakota and Brookhart of Iowa will no longer be given Republican places in the senate committees to try further conference.

The Reed resolution follows: "Resolved that it be the sense of the conference that Senators LaFollette, Ladd, Brookhart and Frazier be not invited to future conferences and be not named to fill any Republican vacancies on senate committees."

Senator Ladd was the only one of the four senators named in the resolution present at the conference. Senator LaFollette, who was an independent candidate for president remained at his home.

The resolution will not disturb present committee assignments. Republican leaders said, but will serve as an impression in future conferences and will be considered by the committee on committees when the question of vacancies comes up. Viva voce votes were taken on each section of the resolution and the majority overwhelming in each case with only two or three voices raised in opposition. There were no speeches in opposition but Senator Harrell, Oklahoma, suggested certain modifications which were disapproved.

CHILDREN REVIVE LINCOLN'S MEMORY

Crusaders Assemble at Depot
Where Lincoln Departed for White House.

(By the Associated Press)
SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 28.—Early this morning in the old Wash depot where Abraham Lincoln made his farewell address on leaving to become president of the United States, twentieth century children crusaders, 180 strong, paid Abraham Lincoln one of the most impressive tributes ever offered in Springfield.

The children came as guests of the local Kiwanis club and Kiwanis clubs from 29 cities in Iowa and were met at the station by a delegation of Springfield school children and the Springfield high school band. Three trains with 41 cars brought the pilgrims here.

A number of local students of Lincoln were on hand to point out the tablet marking the spot on which the farewell address was made and to explain the importance of that message and the events leading up to it.

Included in its program was a luncheon this morning for the children and local board of education. Just before this, the children were to form a parade and march to the state house to plant a memorial tree. H. A. Converse, president of the Lincoln Memorial association, will accept the tree for the association.

The party will then divide into sections to visit various points connected with Lincoln's life at Springfield. Reassembling after the luncheon is over, a trip will be made to Lincoln's tomb where a wreath will be placed on the sarcophagus. Dinner in the evening will be taken at the high school before the children depart for their homes.

McDowell Adjudged Insane
TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Nov. 28.—Frank McDowell, slayer of his mother, father, and two sisters has been adjudged insane and removed to an insane hospital, it was announced today.

Ada Feasts During Thanksgiving

Boastful accounts of turkey dinners with all necessary trimmings seemed the uniform story of Ada's observance of Thanksgiving yesterday.

From accounts broadcast from stories and on the streets today, a wholesale slaughter of turkeys was in order yesterday to satisfy the appetites of festive citizens.

The day was otherwise observed in peace and quiet befitting a day of Thanksgiving.

A football game in the afternoon and picture shows were the only attractions for Ada people to draw them from their family firesides.

Rev. H. W. Wallace, pastor of the First Christian church, delivered the annual Thanksgiving sermon at the First Methodist church in the union services last evening.

A fitting musical program was also rendered in connection with the sermon.

ATOKA IS VICTIM IN FINAL CONTEST

High School Team Downs
Rivals to Tune of 47 to 0.

Ada's high school ended the 1924 gridiron season in a blaze of glory by trampling over the Atoka high school team here yesterday afternoon at the Park field to the tune of 47 to 0.

The visitors missed their only chance of scoring when the Ada line held on their one-yard line for four bucks and the ball was booted out of danger behind their own goal posts.

The entire game saw the Ada teams ripping off huge chunks of yardage through the efforts of Burkhardt and Baker with the assistance of the other Ada backs. The Ada line held throughout the fray and did not allow a single first down without the assistance of the forward pass.

One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the final game of the season.

Montin kicked off in the opening of the game and the ball was returned to Atoka's 36-yard line but was unable to make downs and kicked out of bounds on Ada's 48-yard line. A fumble on Ada's 30-yard line was recovered by Atoka. At the end of a series of fumbles Ada came in the possession of the ball on their own 42-yard line. Burkhardt raved through the Atoka line for 25 yards and on the next play snatched a pass for 11 yards and another first down. A pass over the goal line brought the ball into play on Atoka's 20-yard line in their possession. Atoka kicked to Ada's 48-yard line and Burkhardt ripped across for first downs. Baker wormed his way through line for 12 yards and first downs but the ball went over on Atoka's 20-yard line when Ada failed to make downs. Baker returned Atoka's punt to Atoka's 45-yard line. Burkhardt ran through line for 17 yards and Stalcup followed with 12 more. Baker and Montin rushed over the first touchdown.

Atoka returned the kickoff to their own 37-yard line but failed on downs and the ball was kicked to Baker on his own 44-yard line. Burkhardt made downs on the third play. Baker ended the next play for downs. Burkhardt ripped across for the next touchdown. Baker drop kicked for the first extra point. Ada's kickoff was returned to Atoka's 35-yard line. A pass made first downs for Atoka. Brians intercepted the next Atoka pass on his 45-yard line. Burkhardt made the downs for Ada. A pass to Baker was blocked and Ada recovered on their 42-yard line. Baker passed to Burkhardt who ran the ball 45 yards up the field. A pass to Baker netted 17 yards to one hard yard to the goal. Montin went over for the touchdown. Ada received the extra point on offside. Ada kicked and Atoka returned to their own 37-yard line as the half ended.

Ada kicked and Atoka returned to their 28-yard line. Baker returned their kick to their 49-yard line. Baker kicked out of bounds on their 29-yard line. Atoka kicked out of bounds on their own 38-yard line. Montin went through line for 20 yards and downs and on the next play repeated for 12 yards. Baker and Lambert carried the ball over for the touchdown. A pass to Clark netted the extra point, making the count 27.

Baker kicked and the ball was returned to Atoka's 26-yard line. Atoka made downs on a pass. Another netted 33 yards and downs for Atoka. A pass was completed by Atoka for 22 yards and downs and carrying the ball to the Ada one-yard line. Atoka failed to make downs on Ada's one-yard line and Montin kicked. Ada recovering a fumble. Baker made the downs. Burkhardt on two runs down the field carried the ball over for a touchdown. Baker drop kicked for the extra point. Atoka was stopped on the 51-yard line from the kick.

Koretz, Who Made Millionaires Beg Him To Swindle Them, in Police Toils at Last

By W. Y. FERROL

CHICAGO, Nov. 28.—At last Leo Koretz is going to face the bar of judgment. For a year he has been laughing at the corps of detectives who have been seeking him in every quarter of the globe. He was caught in Nova Scotia.

Koretz robbed the rich magnificently. His Midas-like glamour so dazzled wealthy investors that for years they fell over each other to buy millions of stock in his Arkansas rice swamps and the fabulous Cocobolo concession in Panama.

In Bernard Shaw's play, Man and Superman, there is a passage: Mendoza—Allow me to introduce myself. Mendoza president of the League of the Sierra. (Posing loftily) I am a brigand. I live by robbing the rich.

Tanner (promptly)—I am a gentleman. I live by robbing the poor. Shake hands.

Robbed Family.

According to Shavian definition, then, Koretz is no gentleman. The $7,000,000, appropriated for his own, he took from friend and foe alike, but never from a stranger. He robbed his mother, his brothers, and the girl who did his secretarial work. He took it from all those who had plenty. But he did not rob the poor.

If you want a fish to bite real hard and hook itself right, just pretend you are trying to keep the bait out of its reach. That is an old fisherman's proverb.

Koretz had the fisherman's idea. One had to be a friend or relative to get in on any of his "good things." He never sold to strangers and he never urged anybody to buy. He just lived increasingly well and allowed the impression to prevail that he had a fabulously rich source of income. Naturally his relatives and friends asked him to share his secret, and in the most natural way possible he seemed averse to dividing interest in his golden egg goose. Then they insisted and he yielded and sold them some stock in his enterprise.

Relatives Broke Now.

The usual swindling promoter puts a low price on his wares and exerts himself to convince prospective purchasers that by prompt buying they can get cheaply what in the near future will be worth a great deal more. But Koretz put a high par valuation on his stock and then refused at first to sell at any price. Those who by dint of coaxing succeeded in breaking into the golden circle were more than glad to pay three or four times par for what he sold them "as a special favor."

That went on for years. Koretz had many relatives and, as becomes a man with the family interest at heart, eventually he had them all "fixed for life."

They are realizing now the irony of the phrase "fixed for life." Hardly a Koretz kinsman, from his mother on down, who has not lost the savings of a multimillionaire's home his wife has stepped penniless. Her motor cars, expensive furniture, rugs and pictures, every jewel—all have been sold to help remove the stain her husband has left on the family name and she is working to support herself and two children.

SPEAKERS TO TELL OF MORAL HEROES

Ministerial Alliance and Boy Scout Council Sponsoring Move.

Beginning Sunday morning at Sunday schools and churches Ada church goers and Christian people will hear much of interest concerning the moral and spiritual heroes of America.

L. A. Ellison, teacher of the men's Bible class of the Baptist church, Dr. A. Linseheid of the Christian men's Bible class, John Zimmerman of the young married folks Bible class of the Methodist church and Prof. K. W. Harris of the men's brotherhood class of the Presbyterian church will discuss Dwight L. Moody and John B. Gough. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the First Christian church. Dr. A. Linseheid will deliver three lectures on Roger Williams, William Penn and Frances Asbury.

The object of all these lectures is to teach all parents concerning these great American moral and spiritual heroes so that they may in turn teach their sons and daughters concerning these great characters, who wrought so nobly and successfully for the creation of moral and spiritual development of our national and home ideals.

The following week 25 or 30 picked men will go to each of the Ada ward schools, where all of Ada's boys from 11 years old on up will be invited to take this course. A song leader, minister, and pianist will be at each school. The classes will start at 7:15 sharp each evening and run for six nights. An examination will be taken at the end of the course and every boy and his father will be invited to attend the annual Father and Son banquet.

This work is done under the auspices of the Ministerial Alliance of Ada and the Pontotoc County Boy Scout Council.

CLAIM JAMMED CONTROL CAUSE OF AIRPLANE FALL

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 28.—Belief that a jammed control which rendered the rudder of their airplane useless caused the 2,500 foot fall which resulted in the death of M. J. "Dick" Morrow and H. P. "Pat" Morrow, his brother here yesterday was expressed by some aviators here today.

The ship went into a tail spin late yesterday and crashed to the pavement almost directly behind the capitol while scores of motorists and others looked on.

M. J. Morrow was dead when bystanders pulled him from the wreckage. His brother who was piloting the ship, lived about five hours.

The men were brothers of Walter Morrow, former McAlester and Oklahoma City newspaper man.

Police Search for Man.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—At the request of the St. Louis police, detectives today began a search for a man described to them as Samuel Gold whom they desire to question concerning the disappearance of $100,000 in Liberty bonds from the Central Trust company of St. Louis. Gold formerly lived on 18th street in this city.

First Snow

(By the Associated Press)

NOWATA, Nov. 28.—The first snow of the season fell last night here.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Nov. 28.—A white blanket covered western Missouri and Kansas today. It was the first general snow fall of the season in this region.

CAPPS HERO WHILE SAVAGES ROMP ON

East Central Suffers Defeat
in Annual Turkey Day Battle.

East Central lost its final game of the collegiate season while suffering defeat at the hands of an ancient enemy but one of its pigskin toters was elevated to stardom in the conflict.

Wilbourn Capps, captain of the 1924 Tiger machine, was the outstanding star of the game bucking shoulders with Witt, Southeastern phenom, in a battle featured with thrills.

While defeated by a score of 33 to 0, East Central could boast of Capps alone as the attraction of the afternoon. Durant fans found their consciences and rent the air with yells for Capps, apparently the only Tiger who stood between the dashing Savages and the East Central goal posts.

Capps' endurance was a matter to cause cheers from the sidelines. Time after time he was credited with hurling back a Savage runner for loss and line plays were next to impossible through his section of the line.

East Central's offense was entirely demoralized, the team being unable to show consistent gains except through the aerial route.

Witt, the lengthy quarterback for the Savages, was the star of the game at Durant, ripping off needed yardage at critical moments.

GRANDCHILDREN INHERIT FORTUNE OF MRS. HARDING

(By the Associated Press)

MARION, Nov. 28.—Jeanne and George Neely DeWolf, respectively 15 and 12 years of age, grandchildren of Mrs. Warren G. Harding were left the bulk of her estate estimated at $500,000 under the terms of the will filed here today.

They are the children of Mrs. Harding's only son, Marshall DeWolf, who died 13 years ago in Colorado. Mrs. Harding was divorced from Mr. DeWolf in 1884 before marrying the late President Harding.

The estate, after bequests totaling $56,000 have been taken out, is to be placed in trust until the children are 28 years of age. Until that time, under the will, they are to draw the interest from the property. Harry J. Merchant was named as trustee.

The Eiffel Tower was built by Gustave Eiffel, a French engineer who died December 27, 1923. He constructed the interior frame-work of the Statue of Liberty and while working upon it he conceived the idea of the Eiffel Tower.

Festive Spirit on Turkey Day

While our Pilgrim forefathers killed turkeys back in the Seventeenth century to fatten the Thanksgiving spirits, six killed fowl jars filled with liquid corn products to commemorate the event in 1924, according to reports from the city jail.

Our forefathers dined in peace with the Indians, while modern revellers favored in their state of semi-coma, the return of the country to the control of the natives.

In keeping with their festive spirit, they were given special quarters in the city bastille and charged accordingly in the city court this morning.

Another celebrated the holiday by carrying his quota of corn on his person and was charged with unlawful possession.

Two were arrested by county officers, charged with possession of mashed a still. They were turned over to the federal officers for further action.

SHRINERS BRING OUT YELLOW DOG

Flea-Bitten Animal Given
Loyal Support by Ada
People.

Every dog has his day and the Yellow Dog bossed the Ada kennel with a mighty growl today as Shriners reaped in the harvest of shekels for their annual charity drive.

Assisted in their drive by the Ada high school and College bands which marched up and down Main street today, Shriners were initiating hundreds into the mystic but elevating order of the Yellow Dog.

Dangling cards of membership, hanging from the coat lapels of hundreds of Ada citizens indicated today that the drive was assuming huge proportions and that Ada's poor kiddies would be well wrapped for the winter's fury.

Committees of fezzed Shriners patrolled the streets of the city this morning and up to a late hour this afternoon, enlisting members into the order. Teams were organized and assigned to certain sections of the city.

The peak of hilarity will be reached tonight when Shriners play hosts to the public in a dance at the Convention Hall basement floor. At that time, a popular Ada girl will be presented with a beautiful manicure set, as a prize for the successful candidate in the contest that has been under way for several days.

The Shriners will turn the proceeds of today's drive into articles of clothing to be distributed to the school children of the city who have not ample clothing to face the winter's blast.

LEAGUE HEARS PLEA OF EGYPT'S DEPUTIES

(By the Associated Press)

GENEVA, Nov. 28.—The League of Nations today received a protest from the Egyptian senate condemning Great Britain's recent action in Egypt. The document is written in terms similar to the protest recently received from Egypt's chamber of deputies characterizing the British demands for satisfaction for an assassination of Sir Lee Stack, the sirdar, as excessive and iniquitous.

The league also received a letter from M. Hymans, president of the council notifying the Secretary General Sir Eric Drummond, that Hymans had received from the Egyptian chamber a copy of the protest distributed by the body to all world parliaments, and to the League.

In his letter to the secretary general, M. Hymans, did not indicate what, if anything, he would do about the Egyptian affair in connection with the next meeting of the League council, which is to open in Rome on December 8.

Butler to Remain in Philadelphia as Police Ruler

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 28.—General Snedley D. Butler will remain the head of the Philadelphia police and fire departments for the next three years, if his leave from the marine corps is extended, it was announced today by Mayor Kendrick and General Butler after a conference between the mayor and the general, Mr. Kendrick said.

"General Butler and I are in perfect accord. He desires to stay and I will take the matter up with President Coolidge."

General Butler said: "I will remain here for four full years. There is no more use in wobbling about. Let's get out now and clean up the city."

General Butler came here in January as director of the department of public safety. He had been granted a year's leave of absence to accept the place.

CONDITIONS OVER TENTH DISTRICT 'GREATLY EASED'

Further Indication of Upward
Trend Noticed in Federal Reserve Area.

MINING INCREASES

Cotton Gins Operating Hundred Percent Capacity Over District.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 27.—The financial situation in the Tenth Federal Reserve district has been "greatly eased" and business in every line has been stimulated as a result of the more prosperous condition of the agricultural population in the district, says the November review of business conditions in the district, issued here tonight by the Federal Reserve board of Kansas City. Heavy marketing of products and sustained price movement, coming during the late summer and autumn were given as the causes for the better conditions in agriculture.

"The larger volume of business, measured by dollars," states the review, "is reflected by the reports of clearing houses on debits to individual accounts, or payments by checks through banks. The total reported for 28 cities was $1,477,917,600 for a period of five weeks running through October and ending November 5, an increase of 3.7 percent over the previous five weeks ending October 1, and an increase of 3.1 percent over the corresponding five weeks ending November 7, 1923.

"A further indication of the upward trend of general business and banking is to be observed in the clearing operations of the Federal Reserve bank in Kansas City, and its branches at Omaha, Denver and Oklahoma City. During October a total of 5,991,638 checks and cash items drawn on 3,847 member and non-member banks and representing $1,023,150,694 was handled at the main bank and its three branches. This was the largest number of items handled in a single month on records dating as far back as the beginning of 1919. The amount exceeded that for every previous month since October 15 to November 15, 1920, when it was $1,081,086,970.

"Retail trade during October was affected rather adversely by the unsuccessful warm weather. The volume did not come up to that for September, and it also fell considerably short of that for October of last year. Wholesale trade, however, made substantial gains in all lines reported, both as compared with the previous month and the corresponding month a year ago. There was considerable more activity in lumber and building material trade. Distributors of farm implements and machinery, except threshing machines, reported large increases in country dealers' orders.

Mining Operations Increase

"Mining operations, as a whole, showed increased activity over September and a year ago. October was the peak month of the year in gold production and a good month for production of silver, copper, zinc and lead ores from the Missouri-Kansas-Oklahoma district were moderately heavy, with zinc ores bringing 2.90 per ton more and lead ores about $30 per ton more than in October, 1923. Operations of soft coal mines in the six producing states was at a higher rate of full-time capacity, and there was some improvement in the market demand for the output. "The daily average production of crude oil in four states of the Tenth district fell off 23,162 barrels from the September daily average, but it was still 113,063 barrels greater than the daily average one year ago. Consumption of gasoline, the largest ever reported, caused an increase in crude oil runs to refineries and reductions in stocks of gasoline and kerosene.

"The marketing of wheat continued in about the same volume as in September, almost double the volume of one year ago. Elevators at terminals and mills was the largest for any month of record. Market supplies of other grain, however, were light. The 1924 corn crop was just beginning to start.

Cotton Gins Double

"Cotton gins, with this year's crop nearly double that of last year, were operating at 100 percent capacity. Refiners were converting the largest beet crop ever grown into sugar and setting up new daily records for the tonnage of beets handled or the number of bags of sugar made.

"Heavy receipts of cattle, calves and sheep and moderate receipts of hogs, featured the livestock market situation during October. "New top prices for prime yearling beef steers are recorded, though other grades of cattle did not share in the advance. Hogs advanced to the highest price in four years in the fore part of the month but at the close were around $2 per 100 pounds above the price a year ago.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Incubated, mental, by shock, as a result of experiences during the World War, Renshaw makes a proposition to David Campbell, wealthy, elderly man of leisure, that for a year he assume responsibility for him (Renshaw)—practically "buy" him. Doctor Stanley, life-long friend of Campbell's, indorses the proposition, which Campbell, with some natural misgivings, accepts. The arrangement is that the young man becomes an inmate of the Campbell household, with the nominal duty of secretary. Renshaw meets Verity, Campbell's granddaughter, and gets the impression that she does not like him. Jenks, the butler, Renshaw also feels, is distinctly hostile.

How absurd he had been to imagine things about Jenks and Miss Campbell! Jenks was merely a spoiled servant, impersonally resenting any newcomer, and already contrite over his mistake and anxious to make amends.

As to the girl, that lovely girl with the jet-black hair and the proud and perfect mouth, she was afraid that he, Renshaw, was going to be a nuisance. The human beings in Tawno Ker, thrown together as closely as they were—the solitude of the place suddenly impressed him; surely it was miles from any neighbor!—those humans must form a close corporation. It was not to be wondered at that they should resent an intrusion like his.

A small log, blazing on the andirons, parted and dropped with a rattle and a shower of sparks. Renshaw did not hear it. The door opened an inch, and some one peered at him through the crack. He did not hear the sound it made as it opened and closed. He was in a condition of well-being, new-found and vastly comforting—at peace, relaxed, and at last drifting out on the blessed sea of sleep.

He was awakened by the sound of a gong, mellow but extremely penetrating, obviously a dinner or dressing gong designed to be heard throughout the big house. He sat up with a spectacular start and glanced at the clock on the mantel above him. It was half-past seven. He had slept uninterruptedly for more than an hour, an experience still novel enough to be gratifying. He had only thirty minutes in which to unpack, bathe and dress for dinner. As he cast a last glance in the mirror before he went downstairs he was mildly surprised by the agreeable normality of the being who looked back at him. The fellow seemed at least reconciled to life.

Another reflection followed the first, and was far less agreeable. He wondered if Campbell had told his granddaughter the peculiar relation in which he, Renshaw, had entered the family. That he should give this detail a thought was surprising. That he should have the moment's concern that now followed it was nothing short of amazing. He was actually hoping that the girl did not know, that old Campbell had not told her!

The reflection, though vivid in its little instant of life, perished almost as soon as it was born. What difference did it make what the girl or any one else knew or thought? He turned off the lights, opened his door and strode out into the hall.

Again, as in the corridor downstairs, he caught around a corner the flutter of a disappearing bit of white stuff—a natural enough phenomenon in any house, he reflected, and interesting only because of the impression of flight it conveyed. His attention to the incident was fleeting. Evidently Campbell's servants were a curious lot, and the arrival of a stranger in this isolated house was to them an event out of all proportion to its importance. He entered the living room at exactly one minute before eight, and as he opened the door he found behind him the

Sooner Debate Team to Tangle With Oxford

NORMAN, Nov. 28.—(Special)—Debating at the University of Oklahoma will take on an international aspect when the Sooner team meets the representatives of Oxford University, England, at Norman early in January. Oklahoma will be represented by Frank Watson, McAlester; John Hervey, Marlow, and A. Holmes Baldridge, Oklahoma City, who will uphold the negative of the Question "Resolved, That this house condemns the policy of France toward Germany since the war."

All three of the Sooners are former letter-men in varsity debate. Watson was a member of the team which defeated Missouri, Indiana and Colorado last year. Hervey and Baldridge were on the team which won from Baylor and Kansas state agriculture college.

The members of the Oxford debate team are: Malcolm MacDonald, of Queen's college, son of the recently fallen Prime Minister MacDonald; M. D. Woodruff of New Orleans who was instrumental in defeating Harvard by a popular vote of the audience of M. C. Hollis of Balliol college.

figure of Jenks, coming to announce dinner. Campbell and his granddaughter were already in the room, the latter before a grand piano, which Renshaw, in his abstraction, had not observed during his first visit. The girl had been playing or singing, he assumed, though he had heard no music. Now, seated sideways on the piano-stool, she was absently turning the sheets on the music rack and lending an ear to the monologue of an old lady who sat with Campbell before the fireplace. Her resemblance to him placed her as the old man's sister, but she had entered the world ten or twelve years later. Like Verity, she was in full evening dress. She wore a superb diamond-and-pearl collar; and half a dozen diamond, sapphire and emerald rings relentlessly called attention to the enlarged joints of her fingers. Her white hair was as elaborately waved and puffed as if she were going to a ball. As Renshaw went toward her he heard the conclusion of her monologue, delivered on a high-pitched, plaintive key and without the slightest pause:

"Of course you will belittle the matter. You say you always do but I've told you before and I tell you again that your habit of leaving so many details to the servants will eventually drive us out of house and home as to the way they act some of them didn't get in till after twelve last night though where they could have been is more than I know unless James drove them to town in the service car which Verity has expressly forbidden him to do without permission but they never pay any attention to what one orders anyway so what is the use of giving them orders?"

Old David Campbell raised a thin hand. "One moment, Kitty," he said good-humoredly. "Let me present my new secretary, Mr. Renshaw. Renshaw, this lady is my sister, Mrs. Pardee, and she's got more troubles than any one you ever met before. She'll tell them all to you, too; you may be sure of that."

He chuckled over his own joke, while Renshaw bowed over the wrinkled hand that lay in his own.

The voice of Jenks placidly repeated the announcement of dinner, and David Campbell offered his arm to his sister. Renshaw hesitated. Was he expected formally to escort Miss Campbell? Or would she resent such an assumption on his part? She was as proud as the devil, that girl—every line of her and every glance of her eyes proved that. Also, she was really amazingly lovely. Feeling very unsure of himself, he approached her and formally offered his arm, on which she remotely laid a perfect hand. Together they walked the length of the long room and, crossing the hall, entered the dining room on its opposite side.

Like the living room, it was large and beautiful. There was spaciousness in all the rooms of the old house, and a beauty of furnishing for which the somewhat confused architecture of the exterior had not prepared one. Four high-backed and carved Florentine chairs waited for their occupants at the round table, whose tall orange candles, aided by the firelight, gave the big room its sole illumination.

Renshaw began to feel very much as if he were in a dream. In the mood in which he had approached Campbell that afternoon he would have agreed to clean out furnaces and work around the grounds. As it was, he stood committed to any task he was offered, however menial. Yet here he was, an intimate part of a charming group, seated at the right of old Mrs. Pardee, and with the beauty of Verity Campbell opposite him on which to feed his eyes. He acknowledged the beauty, but let his eyes drift past it. It was there, but it had no message for him.

Once, looking across the table, he suddenly met Verity's eyes and for an instant held them. There was a momentary dancing light in them—like a flicker of sunshine on the surface of a dark pool. Also, the corners of her mouth quivered in a half smile, which passed even as it came. Mercifully he was spared overhearing the comment Verity made to her grandfather a little later under cover of the continued babble of Mrs. Pardee.

"I think your bondman is going to cheer us up," she murmured.

"Cheer us? That young monument to gloom? The old man shook his head. "I'm afraid he's going to get horribly on our nerves."

He experienced anew the sensation that this acquisition of his had already too frequently supplied, though their association was so brief—an emotion of mingled admiration and resentment, unusual and unsettling. To banish it, he turned to Verity.

"Is Madame Hvoeslef having one of her sick headaches?"

"Yes, poor dear."

Renshaw picked up his ears. There was still another member of the family, then, or a guest. Whoever she was, Miss Campbell liked her. The modulations of the girl's voice on the three words she had spoken made that quite clear.

When dinner was over, Campbell led the way back to the living room, with some lingering hint of resentment in the stiff lines of his shoulders, and almost curtly commanded Verity to sing.

Renshaw heard the command with his nearest mental approach to relief. But, at least, it would eliminate the necessity of a general conversation. He dropped into a chair in a corner near the piano, and, though he was aware of the unvision of his course, let himself sink into the black abyss that always awaited his unguarded moments.

After all, had he done right to come here? Hadn't he, instead, added the capstone to the towering structure of his misery? For he had offered himself, and now it was too late to retreat. He was bought, and committed to God alone knew what enterprise—for both Stanley and Campbell had hinted that his new life, if he entered upon it, might hold more than the routine possibilities.

He pulled himself up in a sudden ascent to the present. Something was happening to him—something as wonderful as that hour of sleep had been. A stream of music had been flowing past him; and now, as he began to listen, it seemed to lift him and bear him on it to another world, a world of love and passion and beauty. The girl was singing—and the girl's singing was unlike any he had heard before. What she was singing was a Russian folksong, whose accompaniment was the swiftly flowing water.

When she had finished, David Campbell was asleep; but the plaintive voice of Mrs. Pardee broke the momentary stillness:

"I do wish Verity that you'd learn some cheerful songs such as other girls sing and brighten your know from the musical comedies there must be cheerful music in the world though we never hear any—"

Renshaw rose abruptly and went to the piano.

"Thank you very much," he said. "And—good night."

For an instant her deep eyes met his, their expression as remote as his own.

"Good night, Mr. Renshaw," she said casually.

Renshaw crossed back to the little old lady by the fire.

"I'm slipping off to my room," he explained. "If Mr. Campbell should want me—"

"He won't be! sleep till ten and then James will come in and take him to bed how he can sleep so much at his age I don't know I myself don't average five hours a night last night I lay awake from twelve to five that's how I happened to hear those servants come in—"

In some way Renshaw stemmed the verbal tide and made his escape. As he approached the door of his room, it opened and two persons came out—Jenks and a woman. The woman was immaculate in a white gown, white cap, and white apron, but she was not the trim household of one's dreams. She was past middle age and inclined to stoutness, and the expression of her plain face was rather sour.

"This is Annie, sir, the chamber-maid. We've been airing your room and putting in fresh linen—"

Jenks spoke so quickly that Renshaw, who in his abstraction would have passed the pair almost without noticing them, looked at them with closer attention. It then occurred to him that the enterprise of changing the linen in his room hardly called for the efforts of two servants, but he did not dwell on the thought. Also, Annie was contributing her modest share to the verbal report.

"You will always find extra towels on the shelf of this closet, sir," she said primly. "I leave the extra supply for the floor there, because there's no place in the bathroom but the one rack."

"And—and excuse me, sir, but there's another thing."

Jenks was speaking again, and Annie, with fitting humility in the presence of her superior, moved a little to one side.

"Might I speak frankly, sir? Jenks was almost humble.

"Of course," Renshaw waited with his detached air. The man wet his lips.

"There's—there's some queer things going on in the old house, sir. If you hear odd noises during the night, it's best to pay no attention to them."

Renshaw frowned. "Odd noises?" he repeated. "What kind of noises?"

"That's all I can say, sir. And I'm exceeding my duty, sir, in saying that much. But it's well meant."

Renshaw nodded, his half-formed interest relaxing under a memory of certain sentences in his interview with Campbell to which he had attached no great importance at the time.

"All right, Jenks. Thank you," he said, and passed on. As he passed his door he glanced back. Both Jenks and Annie were standing where he had left them, staring after him. Caught in the act, they started down the corridor and parted at its end. Jenks descending the staircase, the woman disappearing around a distant corner. The flutter of her skirt as she went stirred Renshaw's memory. Surely twice before today he had seen the faint whisk of that skirt.

He entered his room, still slightly frowning. Everything was in order it was all reassuringly natural, and yet—what the deuce was there about Jenks' manner that got on one's imagination and made one exaggerate the importance of the simplest trifles?

He addressed slowly, but instead of going to bed he slipped on his dressing gown and, after turning off the lights, sat down in the chair before the fire. There, clasping his hands behind his head, he leaned back and grimaced at himself. The simple truth was that he did not quite dare to go to bed. Under the surface atmosphere of comfort and normality that lay over the house, something had been injected, something intangible. Of course his imagination was playing tricks with him. At the back of his head was the thought of a mystery at which both Stanley and Campbell had hinted, and which, of course, had to do with the warning just received from Jenks.

Something did happen—a very small thing and not at all disturbing. It was merely the sudden appearance on the wall facing him of a small blue circle of light. It did not dance. It discretion—which certainly did not mean that he was expected to get out of bed and go chasing around in drafty corridors at midnight.

His reflections having reached the gratifying conclusion to which he had directed them, he threw back the bed-clothing and set his feet on the floor. All these things being so, the fact remained that he must see what was in that corridor.

He sprang to the door and threw it open. But, quick as he was, the thing outside, which had seemed to move so clumsily and with such effort, was quicker. His glance swept the length of the corridor, but this time there was not even the flutter of a disappearing garment to reward it. The house was utterly still.

He shrugged his shoulders, closed the door, and got back into bed. Before he did so he turned the key in the lock of the door. The whole thing might be a trick of his infernal nerves—though he knew better. But, at least, he would have a stout lock between himself and that corridor.

It Was Merely the Sudden Appearance on the Wall Facing Him of a Small Blue Circle of Light.

did not even move. It merely faced and regarded him, rather like a watchful eye.

He glanced across the room, but without much interest. Of course, he reasoned, there was some wholly natural explanation of the circle. He would forget it. He would give his nerves time to quiet down before he tried to sleep. He would resolutely think of other things—of scenes and episodes of his boyhood. But the effort, occasionally successful in the past, did not calm him now. He found himself waiting for something. Deep within him was a conviction, which grew with the moments, that something was about to happen.

After an hour or two of this he went to bed. Simultaneously the blue circle vanished. But sleep was slow in coming, perhaps because of that hour of sleep before dinner. The household must be sleeping, he reflected, for it was now well past midnight. Yet he began to hear sounds in the corridor, odd sounds, not easily explained—probably, yes undoubtedly, those sounds to which Jenks had referred.

He stiffened and swore softly to himself. The expectation that something would happen, born of Jenks' warning, was filling him with a sick foreboding, was actually bringing out perspiration upon his face. Yes, his face was damp, and through his big body ran a sudden tremor. He ground his teeth in self-disgust; but his brain, still his alert and willing servant, hastened to bolster his dying self-respect.

It was not because he was afraid of anything that might happen to him that he sweated and trembled. That, at least, he could truthfully claim. The worst that could happen to him had occurred two years ago. It was the possible call to action which made him shake; the suggestion that what was going on, whatever it was, might demand initiative on his part.

He lay still and listened. The noises in the corridor were increasing, and if they were what Jenks had meant he had chosen the right word for them. They were "odd" noises. That quality in them was what had first attracted his attention. They were not footsteps. They were, quite plainly by this time, such sounds as might have been made by the dragging of a heavy body along the floor, and they were accompanied by a huge, exhausted animal. Yet an exhausted animal would hardly be dragging itself along the corridors of Tawno Ker at twenty minutes past twelve o'clock at night.

"There's some queer things going on in the old house, sir. If you hear odd noises during the night, it's best to pay no attention to them."

That was indefinite in itself, but definite enough as far as he, Renshaw, was concerned. In different words, but quite as plainly, Campbell had said the same thing. It was not Renshaw's business to investigate odd noises at Tawno Ker. On the contrary, it seemed plain that he was expected to ignore them. Everything would be explained to him in due time, and in the interval if Campbell wished his assistance he would ask for it. Renshaw's present cue was discretion—which certainly did not mean that he was expected to get out of bed and go chasing around in drafty corridors at midnight.

His reflections having reached the gratifying conclusion to which he had directed them, he threw back the bed-clothing and set his feet on the floor. All these things being so, the fact remained that he must see what was in that corridor.

ARMY AND NAVY GRID SQUAD TO MEET AGAIN

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 28.—Army and Navy, foes in the most colorful of gridiron spectacles, will clash in their twenty-seventh battle tomorrow to break the deadlock in the series which dates to 1890—

Each service eleven has captured twelve games to far, while two have ended in ties. Last season, in the mud at the Polo Grounds, these rivals fought to gain the lead in the series but ended hostilities with a scoreless tie.

Since the war, the Navy has gained a marked edge winning three, losing one and tying one.

FROST BITTEN FORAGE POISONS LIVESTOCK

TALOGA, Nov. 25.—Death of livestock from eating frostbitten forage is being reported from all sections of Dewey county. Deaths have been occurring at intervals since the farmers have been turning the animals into the fields.

The largest loser is Matt Jones, stockraiser of Trail, western Dewey county, who lost seventeen head of cattle before he was able to curb the deaths. Ben Mathis, Putnam, southern Dewey county, lost three head, while small losses have been occurring in all parts of the county.

All frost-bitten forage is poisonous, according to officials of the state veterinary office. The best plan is to keep cattle away from it, they declare. After it has dried out it is all right for consumption.

Georgia Lady Says She Has Grown Stronger by Taking Cardui—Thoroughly Convinced of Its Merits.

Clyattville, Ga.—In a statement which she gave at her home on R. F. D. 1, here, Mrs. T. A. Copeland said: "I have, I believe, avoided a good deal of suffering by the use of Cardui, and am thoroughly convinced that it has been of great benefit to me."

"Before the birth of two of my children, I grew so weak and nervous I could hardly go, and suffered. . . I had a friend who told me of Cardui, so the next time when I grew so weak and run-down I began to use it. I used it three months. I grew stronger and less nervous. The baby was stronger and a better baby, and I really believe it was because I built up my strength with this splendid tonic."

Cardui has been in successful use for more than forty years. Thousands of women have written to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others. It is a mild, harmless, purely vegetable medicinal preparation—a product of practical experience, scientific investigation and pharmaceutical skill. Sold everywhere. NC-159

Diseases traced to constipation are many —get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

Why does constipation breed other diseases? Because it floods your system with dangerous poisons. And the longer you suffer, the more poisons accumulate. That is why constipation should be relieved at once.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. They know it brings results because it is ALL bran. And only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective in relieving constipation.

ALL bran — Kellogg's — sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts as nature acts. It makes the intestine function naturally and regularly. If eaten regularly, it will bring permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation—is guaranteed to do so or your grocer returns your money. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will like the wonderful Kellogg flavor—so crisp and nut-like—so different from ordinary bran, which are most unpalatable. Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. And by all means try it in the recipes given on every package. Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.

off and was forced to punt. Burkhardt added 12 more yards for downs. Baker went over for the touchdown. A pass failed for the extra point, leaving the Ada total at 40 points.

Montin kicked the ball out of bounds on Atoka's 5-yard line. Baker returned the punt to Atoka's 45-yard line. The ball went over when Ada failed to make downs. Atoka was forced to kick to Ada's 40-yard line. Montin made first downs. Baker went through line for 15 yards and first downs. Briens broke through line for the touchdown. Baker drop kicked for the extra point and the final score of 47 to 0.

Oil News

W. C. Hughes and others are still cleaning out their well in section 28-4-7, east of Ada. Judge Hughes says it will be a few days yet before the well is entirely cleaned but he has gone far enough, he thinks, to determine he has a paying well. He believes it is good for at least 15 barrels the way it stands, and naturally will get better when the hole is cleaned.

What appeared to be an oil fire could be seen from Ada this morning. The Pilgrim Petroleum company sent two men out, but they reported the fire across the river. A telephone call to Sasakwa added no new information, as the bankers at that place did not know anything of the fire.

The smoke appeared to be coming from an oil fire.

The Pilgrim Petroleum Company has the tools out of the hole in section 27-4-6 and is ready to resume drilling.

IN HOSPITAL

Sheep and lambs advanced in price and about 75 percent of next year's wool crop was contracted at prices well above those paid for 1924 wool. Most packing operations were heavy, especially in the slaughter of cattle and calves, the October record, aside from that for September, being the largest of any month since November, 1919.

"October was another month for large construction operations, with 3,642 permits issued for buildings to cost $9,482,783. It was a busy month for public improvements, with highway construction reported in nearly every part of the Tenth district.

"All classes of labor, unskilled and skilled, were more fully employed during October than is usual for that month, according to the U. S. employment service reports."

"I had 30 running sores on my leg for 11 years, was in three different hospitals. Amputation was advised. Skin grafting was tried. I was cured by using Peterson's Ointment." Mrs. F. E. Root, 287 Michigan Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

"I guarantee it for eczema, old sores, running sores, salt rheum, ulcers, sore nipples, broken breasts, itching skin, pimples, blackheads, skin diseases, blind, bleeding and itching piles as well as for burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and sunburn." 35 cents a box.

A Canton dispatch yesterday reported Sun had engaged passage on the Japanese liner, Shinyo Maru, sailing today en route to Tientsin, the conference of Chinese leaders discussing China's future government.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THERE IS NO MAN that hath power over the spirit to retain the spirit; neither hath he power in the day of death: and there is no discharge in that war.—Ecclesiastes 8:8.

TAXATION MEASURES SUCCESS OF GOVERNMENT

"Taxation is the process of taking a dollar from somebody to whom it belongs rightfully and using it for the benefit of the people collectively," says Paul Shoup, Vice-Pres., Southern Pacific Company. "The wisdom that governs the taking of this money from its owner and its expenditure on behalf of his fellow men, who individually have no claim to it whatsoever, in a large way measures the success of government. There would not have been an American Republic except for problems relating to taxation which resulted in severing the political ties that bound the old world and the new.

"The question of taxation never pressed upon the life of the individual more than at present. In large degree he is unquestionably unaware of how much of his daily burden arises from taxation. But history shows that this sleep and forgetting is not to be accepted as a finality. In the end when the burden becomes too great, or the sense of injustice too strong, he seeks the source and then comes the upheaval.

"Only the most shallow of thinkers believe that taxation rests where it is initially placed. Every man strives to pass at on in the sale of his service or his production, just as he strives to pass on other expenses. So, taxation is an element in the cost of every bit of food put in the mouth, of every garment worn, of every roof that shelters, of travel and entertainment, and at the end, in the cost of death itself."—The Manufacturer.

GOOD HUSBAND CONTEST

If prizes were offered for the best husband in town, do you think your wife would enter you in the contest?—Enid Events.

Sure she would. Part of the wives are so trusting that their husbands keep them fooled most of the time and another large section of them would never admit that they had been badly stung, hence we could count on a whole string of entries. A small part of them might be too honest or too grouchy about their bad bargains to place them in nomination, but the majority would be there on both feet.

The death of Mrs. Harding leaves but four widows of presidents, Mmes. Cleveland, Harrison, Roosevelt and Wilson. The three latter were the second wives of their husbands and Mrs. Cleveland was young enough to have been a daughter when she married the president. Of former presidents Taft is the only one. No occupant of the White House in recent years has lived long after retiring to private life. In the early days of the government it was somewhat different. In the first half of 1826 four former executives, Adams, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe were living. On July 4 of that year both Adams and Jefferson died.

It is agreed by military authorities that if another war comes it will be settled in short order. This time it will be the one that gets there first with the most poison gas that wins out. Chemists have invented methods of making some of the most diabolical gases ever dreamed of even by the devil himself and next time it will be entire cities that are wiped out at one stroke. With a big fleet of airplanes to distribute the gas the war will be over in short order but there will be few left to tell the tale or to pay indemnity to the winner.

The church of England has stricken the word "obey" from its marriage ceremony. Evidently the church authorities recognize the fact that to have a woman make a promise was to start her off with an untruth on her lips, hence there was no reason for exacting such a promise. Fancy Mrs. Pankhurst and other suffrage leaders who raised so much cain until they were given the vote obeying the commands of any mere man!

According to the Oklahoma City News 24 auto crashes occurred in the metropolis Thanksgiving day. There were no fatalities but eight were injured. The police judge promised to do plenty to the violators of the traffic laws, so it is likely that quite a few will have occasion to remember this Thanksgiving day, even though they may not have much reason to feel thankful.

We fail to see much reason for this thing of deploring the fact that the South is solidly Democratic. New England is just as solidly Republican and with less reason than the South has for being Democratic, but somehow these people who point out how much more progressive the South would be if it scattered its vote fail to criticize New England for sticking to the G. O. P. in season and out of season.

Thanksgiving with its turkey and football is gone. Now come preparations for Christmas, a general round of a week when it arrives and then another year of the same old grind starts. Nothing monotonous about life in these modern times.

OUT DAMNED 'SPOT'!

Soviet Government Considers Plan for Autonomy of Jews

(By the Associated Press)

MOSCOW.—Sentiment is growing in Russia for the establishment of a Jewish republic. The subject has been under discussion among prominent Hebrews and members of the government for some time past. It is known that the Soviet, which is anxious to solve the problem of all nationalities within its borders, is prepared to give complete autonomy to the Jews provided some means can be found of unifying their interests and of locating them in a homogeneous colony within the Soviet Union. At present there are upward of 6,000,000 Jews in Russia, scattered over a wide area.

Bolshevik officials take much pride in saying they have solved the minorities question in Armenia, Georgia, Azerbaijan and the Central Asian States, where for centuries all efforts of Czarist Russia in the same direction failed. They are confident the Jewish question can be solved in a similar way. The government has created a special commission in Moscow to study the Jewish question and to extend schemes for the colonization of the race. The Ukrainian and White Russian governments have already allotted large tracts of land to the Jews for settlement purposes.

Although the Hebrews' aspirations for self-government have never been as pronounced as those of other minorities it is certain a great majority of them would welcome the creation of a republic of their own, provided they are given guarantees of security and independence from the central government at Moscow. The Bolshevik revolution released the Jews from the bondage of the czars, and under the present Soviet regime they are allowed all the privileges accorded Russia citizens. But Jewish leaders here seek an autonomous republic of their own, similar to that under which the Tartars, Ukrainians, Kighesians, Georgians, and other alien nationalities within Soviet Russia are living.

There is no thought on the part of the Soviet government officials to usurp the place long held by Palestine as a National Home for the Jews, for they recognize that religious motives largely govern those who have sought domicile in the Holy Land. The authorities here envisage a much broader scheme of settlement for the Jews, where they would have not only complete religious liberty but full scope for the development of their political, economic and cultural aspirations.

LOFTY CATHEDRAL UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Pittsburgh University Building Shows Progress of Institution

(By the Associated Press)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 25.—A building of great height "to express the spirit of Pittsburgh achievements with such force and such grasp of its sublimity that the whole world will understand" is the underlying idea of the University of Pittsburgh's 52 story "Cathedral of Learning" to be erected at the entrance to Shesley Park and near the site of present facilities of the institution. The cathedral will cost $10,000,000.

Chancellor J. C. Bowman expressed this idea as the principal purpose of the trustees in planning this radical departure in university building construction, pointing out that most educational buildings were long and low, modeled after the structures of ancient Greece and Rome. They suggest calmness and repose, he said, whereas the building planned for Pittsburgh will suggest achievement and ambition for further achievement. Repose, he said, is a reward for labor performed and is not the atmosphere in which youth should prepare for the struggles of life.

"The Cathedral of Learning," Chancellor Bowman said, "is to be the greatest structure ever erected by any community to tell its own living will. The Washington Monument and the Lincoln Memorial in Washington are the expressions of a nation, not of the city of Washington, but this building will be an expression of the spirit of Pittsburgh. The building is to be high, not for the sake of being high, but for the power of inspiration and for the sublimity which great height, together with right proportions, mass, lines, carvings, friezes and pointed Gothic arches can give. By its architecture and by its purpose the building is to record in an atmosphere of worship the effort of those who made Pittsburgh what it is and to inspire to still higher achievement those who are to come. It is for this reason that there will be no tower on the building.

The "Cathedral of Learning" is but one of two ambitious building projects launched by the university. The other is the $2,000,000 stadium which will be ready for use next fall. It is being built of steel and concrete and covers a tract 450 by 600 feet. Its seating capacity will be 65,000.

Work on the new building will start early next year. It will stand on a 14 acre plot facing Schesley Park, in the heart of Pittsburgh's "Billion Dollar Educational Section." It will accommodate 12,000 students and virtually all departments of the university will be housed within its high walls except the college of Medicine and Dentistry which will occupy the present buildings of the university.

Three years were required to draw the plans, which call for Gothic style architecture in white Kentucky limestone. It will be 680 feet high, 300 feet long and 260 feet wide. Four main doorways, 30 feet high, will provide entrances to the building and 16 high-speed elevators will carry students to the classrooms on the upper floors. Charles Z. Klauder of Philadelphia drew the plans.

The cost of construction per cubic foot in a high building is somewhat higher than the corresponding cost in a low building. Chancellor Bowman said, but added that this greater cost "is largely offset by a greater percentage of effective area obtainable in the high building. High construction offers obviously better ventilation, better light, less noise, less dust. The cost of heat, of upkeep and of janitorial service favors high construction. The foundation of the building would require about one and three-fourths acres taken near the center of the quadrangle. This would leave more than 12 of the 14 acres for other buildings in the future. If the space needed by the university were created in four story buildings, would cover the 14 acres. The saving, in land, by the high construction amounts to about $2,000,000. The cost of operating elevators is largely offset by the savings in heat, upkeep and janitor service."

TISHOMINGO HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING IS DESTROYED

TISHOMINGO, Nov. 25.—The Tishomingo high school was gutted by flames Monday night by a fire which started in the furnace room. Several thousand dollars worth of equipment was destroyed in addition to the building loss. Two firemen were hurt by falling plaster and glass and T. C. Napier, superintendent of schools, sustained a sprained ankle in falling through the floor into the furnace room. J. B. Hutchins, fire chief was slightly bruised in a similar fall. Jesse Martin and Gob Lynn were the injured firemen.

The loss was covered by insurance and plans to rebuild are already under way. School will be held in Tishomingo churches and community building until the reconstruction work is completed.

Boils!

S.S.S. will rid you of boils, pimples, blackheads and skin eruptions!

DON'T CLOSE your eyes to the warning which Nature gives when angry, painful boils appear on your neck, face or other parts of your body. Boils, pimples and so-called skin disorders are the result of an impoverished condition of the blood and are not to be trifled with.

It is nothing more than folly to expect to get absolute relief from the use of local treatments, such as ointments, salves, etc. Such remedies may afford temporary relief but you want more than relief; you want a remedy which will rid you forever of the torturing disorder. And the one remedy which has no equal is S.S.S.

S.S.S. stops boils and keeps them from coming. S.S.S. builds blood-power! That is what makes fighting blood. Fighting blood destroys impurities. It fights boils! It fights skin eruptions—pimples, blackheads, eczema! It always wins! S.S.S. has been known since 1836 as one of the greatest blood builders, blood cleansers and system strengtheners ever produced. There are no unproven theories about S.S.S., the scientific results of each of its purely vegetable medicinal ingredients are admitted by authorities. Begin taking S.S.S. today and clear your skin of those blood disorders!

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

ARLINGTON SPAN AGAIN COMING BEFORE CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26.—Congress will be asked at its coming session to again consider the Arlington Memorial Bridge plans with a view to making them a reality.

The idea of spanning the Potomac river with "arches of everlasting granite," to more firmly forge the links between the North and South, is credited to President Jackson. Various presidents have favored the project and President Coolidge now heads the Arlington Bridge Commission, which is sponsoring the proposal, thus to join the Lincoln Memorial with Arlington National Cemetery on the Virginia shore opposite the capital.

The bridge, as now planned, would cost $14,750,000 and be completed in ten years. Nine spans enter into its construction. Eagles, symbolic of the United States, surmount the architecture at the entrances to the bridge which is to be 2,138 feet long, with a 60-foot roadway and total width of 90 feet. The structure will be faced with granite harmonizing with the Colorado Yule marble of the Lincoln Memorial. The whole proposal, its sponsors declare, would make it "the greatest single memorial project undertaken by any nation in recent times."

It will provide a magnificent entrance to Washington from the Lee highway, coming across the continent from Los Angeles. Entering the capital in this way, the traveler would obtain a view of the city's parkway system, the Columbia Island columns, the Potomac and the Lincoln Memorial, with the white dome of the capitol in the distance.

Aside from its artistic features traffic students see in the Arlington Memorial Bridge a solution of the flood of cars that flows over the recently completed Francis Scott Key bridge at Georgetown.

In the construction of the Otrera railroad tunnel through the Southern Alps of New Zealand more than a quarter of a million tons of explosives were used to blast the cavity and about 60 miles of copper cable were required to equip the tube for electric-locomotive operation.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

ASCRIBE YE GREATNESS unto our God. He is the Rock, His work is perfect: for all His ways are judgment: a God of truth and without iniquity, just and right is He.—Deuteronomy 32: 3, 4.

A movement is on foot to erect a monument in memory of Jonathan Chapman, better known in the early history of the nation as Johnny Appleseed. Johnny was not a military hero nor a self seeking politician, but he did a great service for his people. He was born the year the Revolution broke out. He was deeply religious and his Bible was his constant companion. When the Ohio valley began to settle Johnny became a missionary to the settlers in more ways than one. Knowing how greatly they would need fruit, he would load himself down with apple and other seed in the older sections and then walk hundreds of miles through the forests to carry his precious burden to the settlers. He did not confine his work to distributing the seed, but planted many orchards in sections where settlers had not yet arrived and protected them with closely woven brush fences. Thus it was that he helped better living conditions in that region and performed a wonderful service. He also did what he could to impart religious instruction to the people and was always a welcome visitor in every cabin. He had no money but somehow he managed to live and his entire life was devoted to the welfare of others. A monument would be a fitting recognition of his work by keeping green the memory of a man who loved his fellow man and gave his all for others.

In these days we hear more about what the government should do for the individual than we do about the duty the individual owes to the government. People lose sight of the fact that the government is only a system created by the people for mutual protection and to carry on work that cannot be done by individual effort. Some are inclined to look upon it as something apart from the people and a power of unlimited resources and ability to accomplish things by merely waving the wand of a magician, forgetting that they are a part of the government and owe it some duties. In the days of Pericles Athens was a democracy, all the citizens having a direct voice in the management of affairs, but Athens was only a small state. The United States is a great nation where such a system is out of the question. We must delegate part of our powers to representatives and officials to wield in the interest of all. The success or failure of the system depends upon the ability of the people to choose wisely and then stand behind the men and women of their choice. As a speaker at Tulsa recently remarked, "The true function of a government is to take the place in general affairs of life that the umpire takes in a game of baseball. Government should stand on the sidelines and see that both sides play fair."

The suit of the Louisiana lawyer to test the validity of the Fourteenth amendment to the national constitution in order to prevent a negro from being placed at the head of the New Orleans custom house will doubtless develop and bring out some interesting points of history during the Reconstruction era, but the chances are that he will not accomplish much. While the amendment was forced down the throat of the Southern states with the bayonet, something never contemplated by the framers of the constitution, and some rather irregular things were done in congress and in some of the states in order to bring about its ratification, the supreme court has always sidestepped a straight out decision on the validity of the amendment. To decide the matter squarely on its merits would likely mean to throw the amendment out and at this late day, more than half a century since it has been in force, this would tear things up considerably. Furthermore, the federal courts have relied on a section of this amendment to assume authority to pass on railroad rates and other such questions and this, too, would go along with the rest of the amendment if the supreme court were to knock it out. Our guess is that the court will again sidestep the issue and throw the case out on some technicality.

With another good crop next year Oklahoma will again be on the high road prosperity. This year's crop and the good prices prevailing for nearly all farm products will go a long way towards restoring the country to its normal condition and another good year will relieve most of the distress brought about by low prices and short crops. Oklahoma has had many ups and downs but the ups have been stronger than the downs, hence the state has gone steadily forward and bears little resemblance to the struggling territories of early days.

Just why the publicity bureau of the Democratic state central committee in its literature recognizes no candidate except Jack Walton is beyond us. It seldom mentions the national ticket and never once says a word about the congressional and state races, although five members of the supreme court and a corporation commissioner are to be elected. If that publicity bureau is really Democratic we see no reason why other nominees should be ignored.

ELECTION COMING AND ONLY ONE BARREL OPERATING

RECOUNT OF VOTES AT CLAREMORE TO START

CLAREMORE, Okla., Oct. 7.—A re-count of the vote in the democratic primary in which Charles W. Mason of Nowata, supreme court justice, defeated J. H. Jarman, Salisaw, supreme court commissioner by 48 votes for the supreme court nomination in the first district, will start tomorrow in Wagoner and Rogers counties.

Jarman, who is contesting the nomination of Mason, petitioned the supreme court to take original jurisdiction in the election dispute, and when this was denied, sought relief in the Wagoner and Rogers county district courts. An injunction restrained the state election board from certifying Mason's name until after the recount which was ordered by the court.

The race, probably the most spirited in the August primary, centered around Mason, Jarman and A. C. Brewster of Pryor. Of the ten counties in the district, Jarman carried four and Mason and Brewster three each. In the two counties, Wagoner and Rogers, in which the vote is disputed, Mason carried Rogers by an overwhelming majority while Jarman had a comfortable plurality over the incumbent in Wagoner. In Rogers county Mason received 1,526 votes and Jarman 33, while in Wagoner Mason's vote was 468 and Jarman's 583.

The vote of the district as certified to the state election board was, Mason 5,631, Jarman 5,582 and Brewster 5,490.

More recently the election investigation threatened to spread to Sequoyah county where Mason charged votes had been changed. As assistant attorney general made an investigation but his findings were not made public.

Mason formerly a district judge at Nowata was appointed to the supreme court by former Governor Walton.

FRANCIS

Martin Bird is now foreman on the north section of the Frisco and D. Shores and Cecil Hollis, the old foremen, have been sent to Okmulgee section.

T. G. Rice has resigned his position of foreman at the roundhouse and has gone to El Paso, Texas. The Frisco has sent Mr. G. W. Swain here to take Mr. Rice's place.

The high winds from the south have caused some damage to the cotton by blowing it out of the bolls.

They are still at work on the well on section 19 but we have not been informed how deep they are or if there is any prospect of oil.

A Ford car driven by Dee Lane and a bicycle driven by J. B. Fornham, a tennisor, collided on Main street last Friday. The accident caused the fracture of one of Mr. Fornham's ribs.

Mr. Tusha, chief cook at the Harvey House, and Miss Beulah Barker, one of the waiters at the same house were married at Ada last Saturday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Tusha are at this time living at the Harvey house. Tom Smith, foreman of the switch crew, was held up last week and his watch taken from him with some money. J. W. Lillard, constable, Jeff Wilcoxson, marshal, Frank Wright, Frisco detective, and the sheriff's force at Ada got in after the hi-jackers at once and after diligent work at Francis Ada and Allen succeeded in arresting them at Ada and getting Mr. Smith's watch back. We have been informed that the hi-jackers are now in the Ada jail.

The Oklahoma Pipe Line Co. is now adjusting the steel for their mammoth engine, boiler and pump rooms. They have erected a large steel oil tank and have carpenters at work erecting seven cottages. It is said that the whole plant out there will cost the company $200,000.

The gin here has ginned about 200 bales of cotton and more is coming in each day. Cotton was selling on our streets Saturday at 25 cents and if the price holds up the farmers in this part of the county will come out on top and the banks will no longer be under a strain.

The city dads of Francis will meet in regular session next Thursday evening to elect a town treasurer to fill the unexpired term of Mr. Grove, resigned, and to attend to other business. Since the Oklahoma Pipe Line Co. began to take water from the town there is a lot of business for the council on our water system.

T. M. Rushing and son have the concrete floor in their building completed and will very soon begin to plaster the walls and put up the steel ceiling.

Work has been stopped on the Powell building from some cause but we have not been informed why.

Our school is running in order but cotton picking is holding some of the pupils out. It is hoped that the people will get their children in school as soon as possible.

Politics is at a low ebb here and the people are very much dissatisfied with some of the candidates that were nominated. Party lines will not be drawn very tight at this box and the people are going to vote almost every way.

Since the people who were laying the pipe line has passed on down the line there are not so many men in town. Almost all the work out at the pump station is being done by the citizens of Francis and the country around the town.

Rev. Hall has closed his series of meetings at the Baptist church and will go to his home at Amarillo, Texas.

Judging from the talk we hear around here about the bond issue to build a court house and jail at Ada there will be about five to one against it. If the election was held today we do not believe there would be enough yeas to count at this box.

Jess Cariker, John Nobles and R. H. Goodson have gone to Oklahoma City to attend court in the Roy Renson vs. Frisco railway case as witnesses. This is a suit for damage brought by Roy Renson's mother. Roy Renson was a worker at the roundhouse here and got killed two years ago while in the railroad service. The suit was brought at Holdenville and was moved to Oklahoma City by plaintiff.

Business on the Frisco is still rushing and every body connected with it around the depot and roundhouse are on the jump to keep things going.

SHAWNEE SLAYER WILL SURRENDER THIS WEEK

SHAWNEE — (Special) — "Chie" Wyet, who will be charged with the murder of Claude Haney, a fellow oil field worker, slain in a drunken brawl here a week ago last Sunday, has communicated with the county attorney's office, it was learned yesterday, and said he would give up some time this week. Wyet communicated with the local officers through his attorneys, but Claude Hendon, county attorney would not divulge the title of the law office representing Wyet, only stating that it was a firm located outside of Pottawatomie county. According to Hendon Wyet agreed to give up providing a reasonable bond would be recommended by the county attorney.

Haney and Wyet were said to have been friends of long standing and were employed on the same drilling well in the Wewoka oil fields. Wyet accompanied Haney home for a visit of the night before the shooting. The men started drinking according to Haney's story, and a quarrel was started which culminated in Wyet shooting Haney three times with a .38 calibre revolver. Haney was taken to the Shawnee hospital, where he died last Saturday afternoon. Before his death Haney attributed the trouble to whiskey and indicated that he did not want Wyet prosecuted for the shooting.

Immediately after the trouble Wyet fled, leaving his motor car behind, and has defied all efforts of officers to locate him. His communication to the county attorney came as a surprise.

Funeral services for the slain man were conducted at Gaskill's yesterday afternoon, and interment took place at Fairview cemetery. Rev. W. A. Merrill, pastor of the First Christian church being in charge of the services. Haney is survived by his wife and two children.

Women who pay income tax in this country number more than 80,000.

Ice can be made by wrapping a bottle of water in cotton and then waiting it frequent with cotton.

The Forum of the Press

LaFollette or Davis.
(Okmulgee Democrat)
We do not agree with those who search the dictionary to find terms sufficiently bitter with which to emphasize their thoughts regarding LaFollette. We regard Senator LaFollette as a big man, though we do not approve many of his policies. There is quite a number of Oklahomans who are very friendly to LaFollette. Ordinarily he would get a rather large vote in this state. This year, however, there is no question but what the state will either go for John W. Davis or Calvin Coolidge.

President Coolidge does not represent either the Democratic or Republican ideals in this state. He is a New Englander, who believes in New England policies, which for nearly a century have been to live off the rest of the country. There are many good Democrats in this state who have been more or less attracted by the manner in which Senator LaFollette has addressed political affairs, but unless they want to contribute to the election of President Coolidge, they will follow the wiser course and vote for John W. Davis.

Mr. Davis is a progressive Democrat. He represents the Democratic thought of this state. He is the sort of man Oklahoma Democrats believe in. He is a Wilson Democrat. He comes nearer measuring up to the standard of President Wilson than any other man in public life and he believes in the Wilson principles.

SERVICES FOR FATHER AND MOTHER AT TENT TONIGHT

Yesterday was a splendid day in the meeting, three men were converted in the prayer meetings. Subject at ten last night was "The Prodigal Son and Elder Brother." The message went to the hearts of the people and a number asked for prayer. The subject tonight will be to fathers and mothers.

The prayer meetings are reaching a number each day.

Young Things Want Jewelry For Christmas

In giving proud swains an insight as to her heart's desire for Christmas perhaps a reporter can help most of all when it is made public that—

An interview with some twenty-five of Ada's leading flappers showed that jewelry stood first in the hearts of the young things and tolleries next—or perhaps chocolates. One typical bobbed-hair co-ed said "If it can't be a ring, then chocolates will do."

Judge for yourself whether this one is typical or an exception when she gave this kind of an answer, "I don't have a sweetheart and I want an electric dish washer for Christmas." The girl has bobbed hair, rouged lips, wears short skirts, and bright colors. Can you account for the answer?

The cherished dream of French perfume as a gift seems "too good to be true" as it was expressed by a young lady.

Besides the diamond rings, watches and pearls named, were toilet sets, cedar chests, fur chokers, and what do you think not a single one said a "vanity." Are they going out of style or is the complexion becoming second nature and the need for them growing less?

The above takes in jewelry stores, dry good stores, electric supply stores, furniture stores, drug stores and the candy kitchens and think what a minority 25 girls is. Now do you suppose if all or most of the young girls of Ada, wishes come true that any store will be left out? Saying nothing of the many women who are making wishes where they will get to hubby, that are quite different to the above. The question is where shall I get it?

Two Men Killed in Collision Between Sulphur and Scullin

SULPHUR—J. Lancaster, 35, Frisco section foreman, and Ab Roy, 45, a section worker, were killed instantly at 1:55 Tuesday afternoon on the branch line between Sulphur and Scullin, the Frisco junction, when a passenger train and the railway motor car on which the workmen were riding collided at a curve two and a half miles east of Sulphur. Both of the men lived in Sulphur and both have families.

Railway men said the branch line train left Scullin at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon. It was running about 15 miles an hour when the accident occurred, they declared. Trainmen were unable to explain why Lancaster and Roy did not know the train was approaching as it was said to be running practically on schedule.

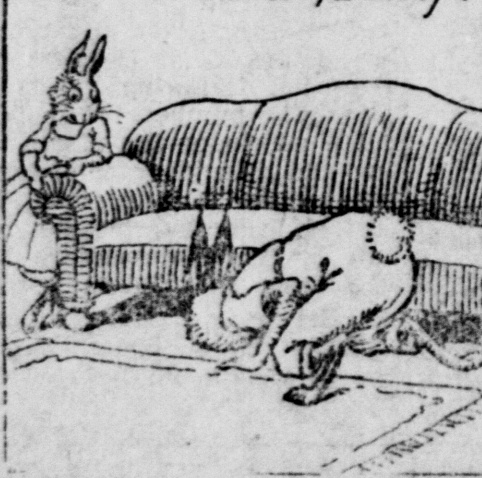

One explanation given for the fatal accident was that Lancaster's watch, by which the two were said to have been working, was slow. Another unverified report was that the men were having trouble with their motor and did not notice the train's approach as they rounded the curve.

Frisco Conductor Mage Nations, in charge of the train, said his engine stopped almost instantly but that the two men were dying when they were picked up. This is the first serious accident that has happened in years on the Sulphur-Scullin line.

TEXAS COURT RULES ON CHECK LIABILITY

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 28—Banks and business houses, also individuals, who accept checks on banks assume the liability of forgery even though the instrument may have been carefully drawn by the drawer, held the supreme court Wednesday in answering certified questions in the case of Glasscock vs. First National Bank of San Angelo sent up by the Austin appellate court. The record discloses that Mrs. Glasscock drew in pencil a check for $5. When it was cashed by the bank it had been raised to $500! No mark was made after the word "five" and some one inserted "hundred," raising it to $500. The bank cashed the check and withheld that amount from Mrs. Glasscock's deposit. She sued and the district court held against her, the jury answering questions that she was careless in drawing the check as to be responsible for the consequent loss.

Associate Justice T. B. Greenwood wrote the opinion and after referring to the large number of authorities in Texas and out of the State, in conflict, on the subject, held that the bank must stand the loss. He said: "We think the scunder principles underlie the cases denying the drawer's liability on a forged instrument which was complete when it left the drawer's hands, though it contained a blank space which made it cash for a forger to raise the instrument."

New Way to Stop Night Coughing

Those who have suffered the torments of sleeplessness due to continual coughing at night, and who as a result often feel utterly worn-out and useless during the day, need no longer permit their systems to be weakened and their vitality sapped by this distressing ailment. For through a very simple treatment the trouble can be stopped almost at once, and people often get their full night's rest undisturbed after the very first trial.

Here is the method: Simply get a bottle of the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery from any good drug store. Then to-night before retiring take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. This prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm and congestion which is the real cause of the cough. So your throat is left wonderfully soothed and cleared of irritating gatherings, you can sleep soundly and restfully, and the cough is usually gone in a very short time.

Dr. King's New Discovery is a remarkable remedy for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, sore throat, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis and bronchial asthma. At all good druggists. Ask for

GIRL FRIEND EXPLODES STORY IN YEATS' TRIAL

NOWATA, Nov. 28.—Alma Richardson, a girl friend of Georgia Fields, whom Joseph E. Yeats, impeached Alluwe minister is charged with abducting, testified at Yeats' trial in district court here today that the Fields girl had told her that Yeats is her half uncle.

The Richardson girl testifying for the defense related a story told her by Miss Fields intending support to the contention of Yeats' counsel that the girl left her home with Yeats because her home life was unhappy. The Fields girl told her, she testified, that Albert W. Fields, Alluwe oil operator was not her father and that Floyd Faber said to be a half-brother of Yeats, was.

Faber was shot by Miss Fields' maternal grandfather because he refused to marry her mother, Miss Richardson declared she had been told.

Miss Fields told her, Miss Richardson testified, that she was "crazy about Yeats" and that he was her "ideal man."

ACTIVITY IN COTTON SPINNING INDUSTRY FOR OCTOBER, 1924

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 22.—The Department of Commerce announces that according to preliminary figures 37,833,252 cotton spinning spindles were in place in the United States on October 31, 1924, of which 31,078,804 were operated at some time during the month, compared with 30,122,384 for September, 28,945,603 for August 28-710,359 for July, 29,216,886 for June, 30,493,165 for May and 34,335,930 for October, 1923.

The aggregate number of active spindle hours reported for the month was 7,592,569,221. During October the normal time of operation was 26 3-4 days, (allowance being made for the observance of Columbus Day in some localities), compared with 25 1-2 days for September, 26 for August, 26 for July, 25 for June, 26 1-2 for May, and 26 3-4 for October, 1923. Based on an activity of 8.78 hours per day, the average number of spindles operated during October was 32,327,376 or at 85.4 per cent capacity on a single shift basis. This percentage compared with 76.1 for September, 62.8 for August, 60.3 for July, 64.6 for June, 67.5 for May, and 86.8 for October, 1923. The average number of active spindle hours per spindle in place for the month was 201.

As Mild as Morning Dew!

"Impossible!" you may say, but a test will prove it a fact. A new mild and non-sickening calomel has been perfected—one that men, women and children can take with the greatest of safety. It is free from impurities that cause salivation, free from cramping, griping, drastic effects, free from all unpleasantness. It works on a new principle. The purest English calomel is combined with pepsin. The pepsin dissolves slowly and allows the calomel to be absorbed into the system without forming a strong calomel solution. That is why it cannot sicken. From your druggist. Prepared by the Pepsinated Calomel Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes stylish? Certainly they are but that's only half of it.

It isn't enough to say that a suit is stylish—most any suit looks pretty well the first time you wear it. Will it stay stylish? That's the real question.

Our Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes will; back of the fine style (and there is none finer) is a backbone of quality.

The fine woollens and the honest sewing will keep you looking right a long, long time.

WILSON'S
ADA. OKLA.
WILSON-LAIN-CHILCUTT

Other speakers on the program included Department Commander Jim Hatcher, Chickasha, Horace Hagan of Tulsa, General Roy Hoffman of Oklahoma City and Dudley Monk of Okmulgee.

Featuring the last meeting of the Department Executive Committee held at Muskogee Monday morning, preceding the arrival of the National Commander, was the enthusiastic endorsement given the proposal for expansion of the Soldiers Memorial Hospital, including several additions, the purchase of the City Hospital, adjoining the Memorial building and a large tract of land adjacent to the hospital site. The project, if accepted by congress, will call for an appropriation of $800,000 from the Federal government.

At the present time, according to Colonel Hugh Scott, superintendent of the hospital, the building is badly overcrowded. With the enactment of the Reed-Johnson bill by the last congress, extending government hospital facilities to all former veterans, thousands of veterans are now applying for admission to federal hospitals throughout the nation, who heretofore were not eligible for treatment.

The Executive Committee also strongly urged the immediate purchase of the Soldiers Memorial Hospital and also the Soldiers Tubercular Sanatorium at Sulphur. With the formation of the new districts of the Veterans Bureau, Oklahoma will be a separate district. At the present time the government has no more Tubercular Sanatoriums adjacent to Oklahoma, the Legionnaires pointed out as they again reiterated the demand that Oklahoma veterans be hospitalized in Oklahoma.

NEARLY ONE-FOURTH OF STADIUM FUND RAISED
NORMAN, Nov. 28.—(Special)—Nearly one-fourth of the $1,000,000 Stadium-Union Memorial fund had been subscribed at the end of the first week of the intensive campaign among O. U. alumni, it was announced here today.

The Dramatic Art club of the College scored a triumph at Fitzhugh Tuesday night and did the school and the scouts a good turn. We are grateful to the Dramatic Art club, Miss Shaulis and also Mr. Gowing and Prof. Watson of the College for the transportation.

Scouts, we will have some big announcements for you next week. Big doings ahead for you. Watch the News for the sure enough news for every Ada scout.

Jones Chapel and Pickett scouts will soon be re-organized and going good. Prof. Howard of Jones Chapel and Mrs. Polly of Pickett are strong for the scouts.

Prof. Watson of Fitzhugh is strong for the scouts. He will help us all that he can.

We visited Latta's fine school this week and we believe that Rowan Kennon, Hubert Cope and Fred Hill will pull some boys into the troop.

The gospel teams going out over the county are helping the boys very much. Our county needs much of that kind of work.

Scouts work hard on all your scout work. We want to have many new second class and first class scouts.

Lloyd Tipton has attained the rank of an eagle scout so far as his work is concerned. Mighty proud of Lloyd as a scout.

Ed Gwin is ambitious now to become an eagle scout. We wonder if he will beat Harrison Meaders.

Do your good turn daily. Remember that this is the real test of a good scout.

Are you trustworthy? Can every body depend upon you?

Cleanliness of heart—that is your first duty.
